

Negro Leagues players made to our National Pastime and more importantly to society through his work as chairman of America's National Negro Leagues Baseball Museum in Kansas City.

Buck's tireless work led the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, NY, to hold a special election this spring to induct Negro Leagues and pre-Negro Leagues candidates into the Hall. In July, 17 legendary players, managers and owners were inducted into the Hall. This induction was bittersweet for many of us as its most visible legend, Buck O'Neil, did not receive the necessary votes. Although many of us viewed this as an outrageous oversight, Buck graciously viewed this as one of the greatest days in Negro Leagues history. That was Buck in his truest form. He was always about doing the right thing. No matter what doors had been closed to him; he always picked himself up and did what was right, never what was easiest or most beneficial to himself. What was most important to Buck was his true love for the Negro Leagues, the Negro Leagues players and the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum—he poured all of his life and energy into seeing that their stories were told and never forgotten.

Buck reminded us that these Leagues and their players are significant on so many levels: they represent a triumph of the human spirit, tremendous sportsmanship, high quality of play, were of vital importance to the African American community, and they led directly to the integration of the Major Leagues, which was the first in a series of major civil rights landmarks that eventually led to the progress we have achieved today. Buck was significant in so many ways and on so many different levels in his own right—he played an important part in shaping the America we live in today.

Buck's remarkable life reminds me of a favorite poem, Game Called, by Grantland Rice. I'd like to read it into the RECORD:

Game Called. Across the field of play the dusk has come, the hour is late.
The fight is done and lost or won,
the player files out through the gate.
The tumult dies, the cheer is hushed,
the stands are bare, the park is still
But through the night there shines the light, home beyond the silent hill Game Called. Where in the golden light the bugle rolled the reveille.
The shadows creep where night falls deep,
and taps has called the end of play.
The game is done, the score is in,
the final cheer and jeer have passed.
But in the night, beyond the fight,
the player finds his rest at last.
Game Called. Upon the field of life
the darkness gathers far and wide,
the dream is done, the score is spun that stands forever in the guide.
Nor victory, nor yet defeat
is chalked against the players name.
But down the roll, the final scroll, shows only how he played the game.

There is little question that Buck played the game with all his heart and lived his life to the fullest. Buck, you will be missed but not forgotten. Our Nation is better by virtue of your play on the field and service off the field. The principle by which you lived your life will carry on through all who knew you. The freedom for which you fought endures. May God bless you with a splendid room within His house. He has certainly blessed me with the privilege of having known you.●

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-444. A resolution adopted by the Michigan House of Representatives relative to extending the production tax credit for wind power energy development; to the Committee on Finance.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 307

Whereas, Energy is our economic lifeblood. Indeed, with energy prices soaring to new and never seen heights in our country this is more apparent now than ever. In an effort to foster the development of alternative energy sources for the future, a production tax credit for wind power energy development was established in 1992. The success of this program is evident in the significant progress that has been made in the development of clean sources of power for our country in the years since that time; and

Whereas, The long-term effectiveness of the production tax credit for wind energy development has been impeded by the fact that this important program faces sunset provisions every two years. Although the sunset is a productive oversight tool to ensure sound spending policies, an extended effort like developing viable wind energy technologies requires enormous capital expenses and long-term commitment. The requirement for renewal every two years has proven to be counterproductive, as demonstrated by the fact that during most two-year cycles, the amount of power added by wind energy investment drops considerably in the second year as developers worry if the tax credit will be renewed after its sunset expiration; and

Whereas, The production tax credit would be far more effective if it could be extended farther beyond a two-year period. Like most other tax credits the government creates to encourage beneficial behaviors, the production tax credit is designed to foster an emerging and capital-intensive industry that may one day be a key part of America's overall energy needs. Clearly, wind energy technology will see many more significant advances with a consistent, multiple-year tax approach; now, therefore, be it
